All four were lapped on each other at the finish and little Thompson was heartily congratulated on beating Watercure, which, although not favorite, looked to be the class of the race. Unfortunately Littlefield could not ride at the weight and his brother's horse appears to run better for him than anybody else.

The inevitable blue pendi cut the card in half for the Rancho del Paso Stakes, leaving four good two-year-olds to have it out over the Eclipse course, with Silver Dale played to odds on. Henry handled the favorite in rare style and after running Telamon to a standstill, salled along and won by four lengths. The others were beaten off but not disgraced as the time was remarkably fast for the condition of the track.

royally bred youngster was bid up to 6,200 guineas or about $31,000. Even that price, however, did not satisfy the owner, and the colt was bought in. An anti-climax was furnished when the four catalogued in Pierre Lorillard's name were put up. Referring to this incident the Field says: "Last of all came four American-bred two-year-olds, all untried and two of them own sisters to big winners. Many of the people had, however, departed, and all four went at ridiculous prices, the top figure of 200 guineas being paid for a full sister to Jolly Tar and Jiffy II."

On the following day Lord Rosebery's yearlings were offered, and T. Simpson Jay paid $20,000 for Ormeile, a colt by Orme—Serpentine. His dam is by St. Serf, and the price exceeds anything offered for a yearling during the preceding sale at Doncaster. Lord Rosebery's lot of eleven brought 6,320 guineas, or about $31,600, representing a remarkable royally bred youngster was bid up to 6,200 Only two owners seemed to realize that there was such a fixture as the Fairyiew Stakes on the eard, and the event which has been signalized by the victories of Argentina, Estaca, Blueaway and Leando, was reduced to a duel in which Wooster Boy never got nearer than a length to his opponent, Greenock. The fifth race was of a much more lively character, with Belle of Orleans a slight favorite ever millstream. It was an unsatisfactory contest from the outsiders' point of view, and they raised a howl when Harry McCoun was placed in front of Millstream. The latter appeared to have won, but it was a question of heads between the first four and the officials were in the best position to judge.

The closing event was signalized by another head finish in which Raffaello struggled up in time to beat the favorite, Duoro. Herbert mixed it up with the pair in the drive home and finished at Duoro's throatlatch.

Despite the abrupt change of conditions brought about by the bad weather and track at Morris Park yesterday, all of the favorites but one finished in the money and two of them won outright. Jockey Henry continues making has whether the sun shines or not, and yesterday he found his way to the wire on two favorites, rode second on West Baden and thought he had won on Millstream. O'Connor, Shaw and Evans each rode a winner yes-terday, while Builman kept up his percentage with three seconds. Third places were also credited to Doggett, O'Connor, Shaw and Mitchell

An important feature of the report was the part pertaining to the manufacture and sale of automobiles. The resources for manufacturing that the American Bicycle Company possesses, combined with its facilities for selfing, make it a big factor in the automobile line. Four of their largest plants are now making automobiles. After the stockholders had adjourned, a meeting of the directors was held in the offices of the company on Park row, with President Coleman in the chair. The election of officers devolved upon the directors, but when the meeting was over last night it was announced that the business had not progressed so far as elections. It was inferred from what little was vouchasfed that there is no "shake-up" impending, and that the same president will be reelected and most of the other officials. Magic Light, from W. C. Daly's stable, did his customary runaway act yesterday. The rail birds say that before the show files he will run away at the right time and there will be nothing else deing. Some humorist circulated a rumor at Morris Park yesterday that the British customs authorities may check the exodus of American jockeys by a duplicate of the foreign contract labor law, which furnishes overtime at Ellis Island. Riders who can afford valets resent the instantation that they are laborers, and their defence seems justified by the leisurely efforts of a few of them recently where genuine hard work was needed to get home.

Pittsburgs Beaten by St. Louis in the Final Game of the Series.

Rain again prevented the Brooklyns from concluding the series with the Philadelphias yesterday, and two games between them will remain unplayed, as the Champions have arranged to play off a postponed game with the New Yorks to-day. The Pittsburgs, however, were beaten by St. Louis in the last game of that series, so that they will be beaten out by a comfortable margin. Rain also stopped the double-header at the Polo Grounds with the Bostons. The results:

Chairman Kellum stated that there was a probability of at least three more teams being in the league this season, and it was decided to leave the matter of membership open until a subsequent meeting. The association will be divided this year into two separate leagues, the Manhattan commands playing their own individual schedule on this side of the Bridge and the Brooklyn commands on their side of the East River: then the winners will meet in a series of games, best two in three, for the honors of the year and the championship.

It was decided to employ professional umpires this year, and an effort will be made to secure some of the champion Brooklyn players. naving been offered to the association. Stony Ford Stock Farm Purchased by J. Howard Ford. J. Howard Ford, a prominent Metropolitan dubman, yesterday purchased the famous breeding plant near Goshen, known as the Stony Ford Stock Farm. While owned by the late Charles Bachman the farm had a wide-spread reputation for the quality of the horses bred and raised there. The produce invariably brought good prices, either in the open market or at private sale, and the nursery was a popular resort for the leading horsemen of the State.

The property includes over seven hundred acres equipped with paddock and stabling accommodations and a very desirable country residence. All these accessories are to be improved by the new owner, who is prepared to invest money liberally in the development of harness and running stock. breeding plant near Goshen, known as the To wind up the baseball season at the Weebawken grounds next Sunday the management will present the best card of the season. There will be a game between the champion Brooklyns and the West New York F. C. As an extra attraction, and to settle several disputes between the Brooklyn players, a series of competitions will be held before the ball game. The fast men of the team will compete at running the bases against time, in a 30-yard dash and a 100-yard dash, and the strong men will compete at accurate and long distance throwing.

Basketball. A meeting of the Basketball Committee of the A. A. U. was held vesterday at 16 and 18 Park place to make arrangements for the ensuing season. The chief business transacted was a revision of the rules, with the idea of improving the game. The following are the most important changes:

After the violation of each rule a foul is to be called and the official who is to call it is named in each case. Rule 11 Section 18 has been changed slightly as follows:

as follows:

The man who dribbles the ball with both hands cannot again touch it with both hands until the ball has been played by some one clas. has been played by some one clas.

Last year's rules permitted this if the ball was touched by some one class. Further the player who dribbles the ball cannot throw for goal until the ball has been played by another player. That player may throw for goal or return it to the man who dribbled it, who may then, if he desires, throw for goal.

Rule 11 Section 27 has been changed as follows:

After an attempt for goal from outside the boundary line, the ball, whether the goal is made or not, must be thrown up in the centre of the field and the goal, I made, does not count The referee calls three fouls, vis.: Rule 7, section 9: rule 11, sections 35 and 38. This adds one more foul to the referee's duties.

To rule 12, section 4, this statement has been added:

The following statement has been added to rule 11, section 1; rule 11, section 1;

The ball must enter and remain in the basket until after the referee's decision of said goal.
This means that the official goal must be used in match games and that the bottom of the basket is not to be cut out. Discussion has arisen in a number of clubs as to whether a throw resulted in a roal or not, because the bail passed so rapidly through the basket that it left the spectators in doubt as to whether a goal was made or not.

Parkway Races Postponed. Ed A. Tipton of the firm of Fasig-Tipton Company returned to New York yesterday after several weeks' visit in the South. He saw $2,000,000-Old Directors Re-elected-A New System for Racing on Armory Floors the Futurity trotted at Lexington, and says that it was the best-looking field of three-yearolds he ever saw. Very few mistakes were made and the youngsters resembled old campaigners in their movements.

It was done | in 2:10%. No man living could have told which horse would be the winner. They were Fereno, Susie J. and Lady Thisbe. This trio trotted the middle half, lapped, in 1.04, all on a terrifle drive. Fereno outlasted the others, but won only in the last 100 yards. It is probably the the only heat ever trotted by three-year-olds in which the second, third and fourth horses went better than 2:12. Thomas Lawson of Boston has bought a yearling sister in blood to John R. Gentry. She is by Gentry's sire, Ashland Wilkes, out of a sister to the dam of the little red horse.

Ida Howe, dam of Georgena, 2:07½, winner of the $10,000 charter Oak Stake this season, was sold a number of years ago for $10,000, although her best record was only 2:50½ and her breeding not of the best.

While Albert C. Bostwick, the well-known horse show exhibitor, was looking at herse racing for the first time at White Plains, he asked many questions about the rules and manner of conducting the races, and appeared to be deeply interested. The tolowing week he was in Kentucky buying trotters. Mr. Bostwick would be warmly welcomed in light harness horse circles. He is a good judge of animais and a young man who would add much to the popularity of the American gentleman's sport.

Matt Dwyer, who has been winning a few of the purses on the fair tracks, returned to his home at Gravesend yesterday from the Danbury fair, where he was in the money in two or three races. S. M. MANY HEATS AT LEXINGTON.

A Day of Sharp Contests and of Profit to the Bookmakers.

Although many persons expected that she would quit and wait for more favorable weather in which to start anew in her attempt to make a record for twenty continuous centuries. Miss Margaret Gast did nothing of the kind, but continued all day yesterday through the rain over the muddy roads. She finished soo miles shortly after 8 o'clock last night and although she was not so far along as she had hoped to be, she was still within the schedule laid out for her. After completing the sixth century on Monday night the rider rested and got some sleep. She wore a knickerbocker costume in which to brave the rain and donned a pair of leggins similar to those worn by soldiers. A triplet, manned by Century Road Club members that had been pacing her, was not on hand yesterday and she travelled nearly all day with only single pacemakers, Henry Davis and Leon Cohn, during most of the work. The seventh century was finished at 10 o'clock in the morning. LEXINOTON, Oct. 9 .- The harness racing to-day was characterized by the sharpest contests of the breeders' meeting. It took seventeen heats to decide the three races and then one was unfinished. It proved a fine day for the bookmakers. The first event on the card was the 2:10 pace. Game Boy was the favorite, but there was strong play on Balmy L., Mark Derby and others. In the first heat Game Boy finished fifth, and the judges, believing that R. D. Berry, his driver, was An agitation is being made in military athletic circles that seems to have been much needed. The idea is the formation of system for the indoor racing on armory floors. It is proposed to run an indoor championship series, or rather two of them, one an open competition for amateurs and the other for regimental riders only. The races are to be ridden on the point system, the same as in the out-door contests, and to have the whole winter season work along toward a findle at the tournament of the Military Athletic League in Madison Square Garden in March. laying up, declared all bets off on the heat and fined Berry $100. The second heat Game Boy won, but in the third he could do no better than finish second, Balmy L. winning handily, The latter also won the next two heats, after a struggle in the first with Mark Derby and in the other with Fred M. Although the track was slow the time in the second heat, which went to Game Boy, was 2:11. Balmy L., the winner, is owned by J. J. Jerome of Chicago.

The 2:14 trot had eleven starters. Prince of India was a hot favorite, selling at $50 to $6 for the field. In the first heat the Prince won after a sharp brush in the stretch with won after a sharp brush in the stretch with Major Greer and Iris O. He also won the second heat after being driven to a neck finish by Nigger Jack, who was pushed by Arch W. The third heat went to the latter, who appeared to be the winner of the race, finishing with a rush in the stretch. The Prince of Lindia's backers now began to hedge, backing Arch W. Arch W won the fourth heat and was made a favorite over the field, but in the fifth heat he was nipped in the backstretch by Prince of India and Red June won after shaking Nigger Jack who finished near the wire. Red June won the next heat in good style, although every inch of the ground was hotly contested. She also won the sevent and final heat.

The last race, the 2:18 trot, was unfinished. Molo won the first heat, Stranger the second and third, and Wauban the fourth and fifth twas a fine botting affair, in which the talent was worsted. After the fifth heat Harry Dallinger, driver of Molo, and Will Evans, driver of Stranger, came to blows because Stranger ran on the backstretch and was set back. MR. VANDERBILT AFTER RECORDS. A Run to Mioneapolis in Fifteen Days on His Automobile for a Wager. It is reported in automobile circles that William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., will start to-morrow in his racing machine in an attempt to make the run between New York and Minneapolis in fifteen days. Mr. Vanderbilt himself has avoided publicity concerning the matter, but members of the Automobile Club are confident that he will start. Mr. Vanderbilt was confessedly disappointed at the result of his trip from Newport to New York made on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 29 and 30. That was a very hard trip because the roads were muddy and there were several breakdowns. As a record-breaking trip it was a failure. Mr. Vanderbilt still believed that he had the fastest road machine in the country and to some of his acquaintances declared that he would yet make the New York-Newport trip in a time that would prove this. Soon after this attempt, according to a Waldorf-Astoria report. Mr. Vanderbilt, while at dinner with a Wall Street friend at that hotel, brought up the subject of the trip. Mr. Vanderbit strongly championed the "White Ghost," as he calls his racing machine, and declared that he had figured it out that he could make the run to Minneapolis in filteen days. There was more talk and a wager of $10,000 is supposed to have been made, Sidney J. Smith being the one said to have bet against the success of the undertaking.

The machine in which Mr. Vanderbilt will start is one of French manufacture with a gasolene motor of high horse power. A French ing trip it was a failure. Mr. Vanderbilt still be-before. As for the boy, he made runs of 38 and 21 and played in a style that made it easy to understand how he had beaten Taylor, the amateur crack of Chicago. He was strong last night at mass and draw shots and the daintiness with which he made them and the numbleness with which he got off the table and out of the way won frequent authorise.

The prospects of the University of Pennsylvania again carrying off the honors of the intercollegiate games next spring have been considerably improved by the news that J. W. B. Tewk sbury has decided to enter the university again and take a postgraduate course in dentistry. Tewksbury won the 100 and 220 yard dashes at the intercollegiate meet in 1893 and duplicated his victories at the 1899 games. He has been out of the university for a year, but went abroad with the team of Pennsylvania and finished second to Jarvis of Princeton in the 100-yard for the world's championship at the international games at Paris. He is a sound ten-second man and his addition to the team is opportune, as Pennsylvania loses three of her greatest athletes this year, in Kraenzlein, McCracken and Alec Grant. Tewksbury has only competed three years at the intercollegiate meet, so under the rules he is eligible for one more season. collegiate games next spring have been con-

Even though the rain should fall in torrents
this afternoon, the Columbia Varsity football eleven will line up against the team of Williams College at Columbia, formerly Manhattan Field. The game is expected to put the local Varsity on edge for the game with Harvard at Cambridge on Saturday. Coach Sanford said yesterday that Williams would be compelled to play the strongest eleven that can be produced from the material on hand and that Columbia will try to run up as large a score as possible. The advent of Slocovitch, the crack end rush, has created a feeling of increased confidence among the local players, for he has begun work in splendid form already. The Williams eleven have been playing good football so far and may furnish a surprise for Sanford's men, who think possession. A kick ensued and after a wait of the minutes the referee ordered play. Both teams responded and Moore securing the ball an elighty yard run scored a touchdown.

The new eligibility rules drawn up by representatives of the different faculties may wipe out several feuds that have existed hetween leading universities because of the questionable amateur standing of certain players. Yalloceased to play football with the University of Pennsylvania because it was alleged that several of the Quakers were inclinible to play. For similar reasons Princeton also severed relations with the Philadelphians. All efforts to bring about a reconcillation since the breach have failed. In this faculty movement, however, the University of Pennsylvania has shown an equal desire with the other institutions to purify the sport and to put into effect rules and regulations that will keep out men who merely go to college to play football to the detriment of their studies. So it may come about in time that Yaie and Princeton may appreciate the sincerity of the Quakers and renew hostilities on the gridiron, As a matter of fact, Old Penn's athletics in recent years have been remarkably free from the evils almed at by the faculty rule makers.

Mike Murphy, the noted trainer, who is back at New Haven, has come to the conclusion that the Yale eleven as selected so far has been over worked and he has issued peremptory orders that several of the regulars must take a rest. Mike Murphy, the noted trainer, who is back at New Haven, has come to the conclusion that the Yale eleven as selected so far has been overworked and he has issued peremptory orders that several of the regulars must take a rest. Murphy's presence among the Yale coaches and players means a great deal this year. The Blues have missed the crack trainer ever since he left them to join forces with the University of Pennsylvania three years ago. Though CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 9. - Harvard's Varsity eleven CAMBRIDGE, Oct 9.—Harvard's Varsity eleven was scored against for the second time this season by the second eleven. On the former occasion the second eleven defeated the first to-day the game was a te, each side scoring one touchdown. Howe, who made such excellent tadlies last week, got the ball on a fumble and run sixty-five yards, followed closely, but in vain, by Kendall for the touchdown. The Varsity eleven had to work hard after that, but finally succeeded, chiefly on centre plays, in carrying the ball across the second's goal line. Harvard plays Amherst to-morrow. he left them to join forces with the University of Pennsylvania three years ago. Though Jim Robinson handled the Yale men with skill last year, the football mentors at New Haven were not satisfied until they had landed Murphy. It was thought that the Quakers would be handlcapped some after Murphy left them, but so far they have appeared to be in better physical trim than any other big 'Varsit' eleven. This is due to the coaching and handling of Woodruff, who has Murphy's methods down fine. Harvard still has Trainer Jack McMaster and Princeton has taken back Jim Robinson, both of whom are first-class trainers. Cornell has Jack Moakley to train the men, but Columbia's eleven is both coached and trained by Sanford.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 8.—The Pennsylvania State College football eleven, who have been quartered here since Sunday, are hopeful of giving Princeton a hard rub tomorrow afternoon. Notwithstanding the poor weather conditions they have been able to get considerable practice, though no such thing as a line-up has occurred. Yocum, who did such good work for State against West Point, has gone home. The injury he received in Saturday's game would not permit him to play to-morrow. He will be greatly missed at right tackle. It was he and not cummings who played so well and did the great hustling in the West Point game. The State players are all in good physical condition. The State players were of the opinion that West Point was just as strong this year as last.

seven is both coached and trained by safety and both the second of coaching differ radically in many particulars from those used by last year's coach, but so far they have resulted satisfactorily. Nelson Drummond, '02, who played at left end last year, will be at his old place again. He is one of the fastest and headiest players on the team. Redmond, '01, is playing at right radically in the severy strong at blocking and breaking through Richard Drummond is playing his second weighing over 200 pounds. Those who have watched Coach Sanford at work drilling the Columbia men are willing to stand by the statement that he knows his business. In fact, they are inclined to believe that Sanford is the best coach in the country. He is absolute boss of the situation and nobody can interfere with him in any way. Sanford commands the respect of every player who wants to make the 'Carsity. He puts on football togs himself and gets into the scrimmages with a vigor that in itself shows the candidates that the coach knows what he is talking about. Sanford's eye for weak points in play is remarkable. He can single out the men who make the mistakes one after the other as quick as a ftash. He does not spare them either in his comments. In fact, they come in for a scoring in the presence of the other players and spectators that cannot be misunderstood. Sanford seldom praises his stars. He is more likely to indulge in scathing criticism. On Saturday, for instance, when Weekes made a poor play, Sanford, who was on the side lines, said with a sneer.

The famous Weekes! Well, well! He ought to be roasted good for that play! I wish you newspaper men would roast Weekes hard for that!"

Sometimes, when one of the lesser lights makes a good play, Sanford will cry out:

"That's the first time you've shown any kind of form this year. Do it some more!"

Sanford can remove any player from the eleven at will, and for that reason the men all stand in awe of him. He is fair in his cealings with everybody and is well liked at the university. For his services as head coach Sanford receives a salary of $5.000 a year.

Nine-tenths of the spectators who watch football covers to the salar on the men all stand in avec of him. New Haven, Oct. a.—The rain for which Yale's football players have been praying came to-day in the shape of a long, slow, cold drizzle. The pigskin warriors welcomed any change that would drive away the heat which has been worrying the team for the past two weeks. Although the field was wet and cold and slippery the team went out for half an hour's practice. All of the regular 'Varsity men were back in the game. The leather was as slippery as a greased pig and there was much fumbling. The 'Varsity managed to hold on to the ball long enough to score three touchdowns, which was pratty good considering the condition of the ball and field. To-morrow 'Vale will try another of the little colleges. This time Yale's opponent will be Bates College. The Bates team is a good one and there will be much interest in the game.

Nine-tenths of the spectators who watch football games only see what is done by the man who runs with the ball. If he gains ground he is applauded and if he loss ground he is criticised. But the man with the ball is not always the one to watch. Those who are called upon to make holes in the opposing rush line, or to provide interference in end runs, or to drag the man with the ball through a struggling scrimmage are really the ones to look at with critical eyes, for in almost every instance the art of making ground depends wholly upon the assistance provided by them. Much of the time devoted by coachesis consumed in showing men how to pave the way for the ball hearers, and when a man fails to gain, therefore, it can almost always be shown that somebody else is to blame besides himself. The intricate part of football playing lies in perfecting team work, without which an eleven is practically helpless against well-drilled opponents. Coach Woodruff of Old Penn, for instance, scorne individual plays. They are the delight of the grand stand, but they do not win games. It is all very pretty to see a fiving tackle, even if the man has gained five yards, but it is better when interference, runner and all are crushed to the ground without gaining an inch. Long individual runs are also something worth seeing, but without interference they are generally ineffective.

ITHACA, Oct. 9.—The Cornellians on the side lines were very much delighted this afternoon after the practice was over. The team have not done such good work this season as they did to-day. They tore holes in the opposing scrub line almost at will, and before the coach sent them in they had scored five touchdowns. On defense they were impregnable. The scrubs tried in vain to gain through the line, but were each time downed, either with no gain or with loss. Namack was in at centre pending the final action of the faculty on Pierson.
